

Hayami — Complete Fusion Document (All 21)

Design Philosophy:

- Fusions are the absolute ceiling of Hayami's power — visibly above anything a single T2 form can do.
- Each fusion blends both component elements evenly. No element dominates the other.
- Personality is a true blend of both T2 forms, creating something distinct from either parent.
- The stamina cost is severe. Hayami enters a fusion to end something.
- Entries marked (Undiscovered) are fusions Hayami has not yet unlocked.

1. 🌋 ASHFALL HAYAMI (Undiscovered)

Components: Earthquake + Blaze Concept: The Weight of Destruction — Earth's mass weaponized by Fire's fury Est. Power Rating: 78.75

Personality: Earthquake's patient, protective authority collides with Blaze's impulsive, competitive aggression — the result is someone who is slow to act but catastrophic when they do. Ashfall doesn't rush. They survey the battlefield, weigh every option with Earthquake's methodical calm — and then Blaze kicks in and they absolutely obliterate the chosen target. The patience makes the explosion worse, not better. Enemies who've watched Ashfall stand still for ten seconds learn very quickly that the stillness was a wind-up.

Appearance: A dark, smoldering palette — charcoal black (■ #1A1A1A), deep burnt orange (■ #C45000), and earthy brown (■ #6B3A1F). Chunks of rock across their shoulders and arms glow ember-red at the cracks, as if the stone itself is on the verge of igniting. Their eyes burn a deep molten orange.

Move	Description
Magma Fist	Ashfall coats their fist in a layer of superheated rock and delivers a single devastating punch. The impact doesn't just hit — it erupts, sending a shockwave of molten debris outward in all directions. Earth's weight, Fire's explosion, one point of contact.
Eruption Pillar	Ashfall stomps the ground and sends a fissure racing toward a target — when it reaches them, a pillar of burning rock erupts from below, launching them skyward in a column of fire and stone.
Ashfall Surge	Ashfall raises both arms and causes the surrounding terrain to fracture and ignite simultaneously — chunks of burning earth are launched in every direction, blanketing the battlefield in flaming debris that continues to burn where it lands.

2. AURORA HAYAMI (Undiscovered)

Components: Ice + Solar Concept: The Cold Light — Absolute precision meets absolute stillness Est. Power Rating: 84.50

Personality: Ice's cynical, sharp-tongued detachment merges with Solar's arrogant genius — the result is someone of breathtaking, almost otherworldly composure. Aurora does not find you worth being angry at. They do not find you worth rushing for. They have calculated exactly how this fight ends, and they are allowing it to proceed at its natural pace purely because stopping it early would be beneath them. Every comment is cutting. Every move is elegant. They make you feel like a minor inconvenience in their schedule.

Appearance: A luminous, cold palette — white (□ #FFFFFF), pale silver (□ #C8D8E0), aurora blue (□ #7FDFFF), and soft gold (□ #FFE97F) accents that shimmer at the edges like refracted light through ice. Their eyes glow a pale, electric cyan-white.

Move	Description
Glacial Beam	Aurora fires a sustained beam of solar energy so cold it freezes rather than burns — a concentrated ray of sub-zero light that flash-freezes everything it touches in a clean, precise line. Fired with one hand, the other in their pocket.
Frost Nova Burst	Aurora releases a radial pulse of solar-chilled energy — a wide, blinding flash of cold white light that simultaneously blinds and freezes anyone caught in the radius. Elegant, efficient, deeply annoying to be on the receiving end of.
Absolute Zero Flare	Aurora's most powerful move. They channel solar energy inward, compress it to sub-zero temperatures, and release it in a single catastrophic explosion of frozen light — a sphere of ice and solar force that expands outward and flash-freezes the entire surrounding area. Aurora looks mildly satisfied afterward.

3. 🌿🔥 BRIAR HAYAMI (Undiscovered)

Components: Blaze + Thorn Concept: Burning Wilds — Fire's aggression feeding Nature's growth Est. Power Rating: 78.42

Personality: Blaze's passionate, short-tempered competitiveness merges with Thorn's charming, unpredictable wildness — the result is chaotic, feral, and genuinely fun to watch from a safe distance. Briar fights like they're playing the world's most dangerous game and winning. They're loud, they're reckless, they laugh at their own attacks, and they set things on fire with the energy of someone who just had a fantastic idea. There is no plan. There is only momentum.

Appearance: A wild, overgrown palette — deep red ((■ #AA1F1F)), burnt green ((■ #4A7A00)), and flashes of bright orange ((■ #FF6A00)) where fire meets leaf. Thorned vines wrap their arms and shoulders, tips glowing ember-hot. Their eyes burn a fierce amber-green.

Move	Description
Blazing Thorn Whip	Briar summons a long vine wreathed entirely in fire, wielding it as a whip that burns and lacerates simultaneously. The range is massive, the strikes are wild, and Briar is having the time of their life.
Wildfire Bloom	Briar slams both hands into the ground — fire and roots erupt simultaneously, spreading outward in every direction. Plants ignite as they grow, creating a spreading carpet of burning thorn-growth that's difficult to navigate and painful to touch.
Inferno Thicket	Briar conjures a dense wall of massive, flaming thorned growth around a target — a prison of burning bramble that constricts inward. Briar yells something enthusiastic while doing this.

4. 🌀🌿 CANOPY HAYAMI (Undiscovered)

Components: Cyclone + Thorn Concept: The Living Storm — Wind animating Nature into something airborne and dangerous Est. Power Rating: 80.83

Personality: Cyclone's free-spirited, chaotic prankster energy merges with Thorn's wild, unpredictable childishness — the result is the most genuinely unhinged version of Hayami that is somehow also the most fun. Canopy treats the entire fight like a jungle gym. They zip through the air on wind, drop carnivorous plants from above, redirect tornadoes into each other, and narrate their own chaos with unbridled enthusiasm. There is no malice. There is only movement and plants and the sound of Canopy laughing somewhere above you.

Appearance: A vivid, wild palette — bright green (( #3DBE3D)), cyan (( #00FFF2)), and deep forest shadow (( #1A3D1A)). Leaves and small vines trail behind them like a wake when they move at speed, and their hoverboard has roots growing along its underside. Their eyes are a bright, wild lime green.

Move	Description
Aerial Root Drop	Canopy rides their hoverboard high above the battlefield and drops rapidly growing roots downward — by the time they reach the ground they're massive, crashing like pillars and spreading thorned vines in all directions. Canopy swoops away before the dust settles.
Cyclone Seed	Canopy fires a compressed seed wrapped in a spinning wind current — it travels fast, embeds in the ground, and explodes into a massive carnivorous plant that spins violently, striking everything around it. Canopy thinks this is the funniest move they have.
Canopy Vortex	Canopy generates a tornado seeded with thousands of razor leaves and thorned vines — the result is a spinning green tempest that shreds anything caught inside it. Canopy circles it from above, dropping more seeds into it for fun.

5. 🌻 🌪️ CYCLAR HAYAMI (Discovered)

Components: Cyclone + Solar Concept: Grace and Flow Est. Power Rating: 83.33

Personality: Solar's arrogant, calculating genius merges with Cyclone's chaotic prankster energy — the result is someone who is genuinely delightful and absolutely insufferable in equal measure. Cyclar fights with breathtaking elegance and knows it. They bow before attacks, narrate their own movements, and compliment your effort right before making you look ridiculous. The grace is real, the power is overwhelming, and they are having the absolute time of their life.

Appearance: A radiant, airy palette — brilliant white (☐ #FFFFFF), sky cyan (🟩 #00FFF2), and warm gold (🟡 #FFD700) that seems to shimmer with refracted light. Their outfit flows loosely, catching the wind constantly, and light refracts around them in small prismatic flickers. They wear Solar's visor sunglasses, but the lenses glow cyan at the edges. Their eyes are luminous gold.

Move	Description
Mirage Step	Cyclar refracts light through wind currents around their body, creating multiple convincing afterimages that move independently. Enemies can't determine which is real. Cyclar dances between them, attacking from angles that shouldn't be possible, bowing theatrically after each strike.
Invisible Blade	Cyclar focuses light refraction into a single compressed edge of wind — a cutting strike that is completely invisible until it lands. No visual warning, no sound, no tell. Cyclar announces it beforehand anyway, because the point is that you still can't stop it.
Radiant Vortex	Cyclar generates a massive tornado threaded with blinding solar light — enemies inside can't see, can't orient, and are shredded by both wind and concentrated photon energy simultaneously. Cyclar rides their hoverboard around the outside, waving cheerfully at anyone watching.

6. ⚡🔥 EMBERSTORM HAYAMI (Undiscovered)

Components: Cyclone + Blaze Concept: The Firestorm — Speed and fire merged into pure kinetic destruction Est. Power Rating: 78.92

Personality: Cyclone's carefree, chaotic energy merges with Blaze's passionate, competitive aggression — the result is someone who fights like a natural disaster with a personal grudge. Emberstorm is loud, fast, and everywhere at once. They don't stand still long enough to be hit, they're always moving, always burning, always angling for the next strike. Enemies who try to track them report seeing fire trails in three directions at once. Emberstorm finds this deeply satisfying.

Appearance: A blazing, kinetic palette — vivid orange (🟠 #FF6B00), hot red (🔴 #CC2200), and streaks of bright yellow (🟡 #FFE500) that trail behind them in motion like contrails. Their hoverboard is fully aflame. Their eyes are a fierce, burning amber.

Move	Description
Firestorm Dash	Emberstorm ignites their hoverboard and tears across the battlefield at extreme speed, leaving a wide trail of fire behind them. They use this to circle enemies, cut off escape routes, or simply crash through them at full speed.
Ember Cyclone	Emberstorm generates a spinning vortex of fire and wind — smaller and more mobile than a full tornado, it chases targets at high speed. Emberstorm rides alongside it, directing it like a weapon.
Supercell Blaze	Emberstorm's most overwhelming move. They spin rapidly, pulling fire and wind into a massive rotating firestorm that expands outward — a supercharged, blazing cyclone that incinerates everything in its radius while flinging flaming debris in all directions.

7. ⚡ 🌀 FLASHGALE HAYAMI (Undiscovered)

Components: Thunderstorm + Cyclone Concept: The Untraceable — Lightning's precision merged with Wind's evasion Est. Power Rating: 81.25

Personality: Thunderstorm's cold, ruthless impatience merges with Cyclone's carefree, chaotic flightiness — the result is someone who cannot be pinned down in any sense of the word. Flashgale is there, then not there, then behind you, then laughing somewhere above you. The cold edge of Thunderstorm keeps the chaos just controlled enough to be surgical — but Cyclone's nature means they won't stay serious for long. They vanish mid-sentence. They attack from places they weren't a moment ago. Fighting them is deeply disorienting.

Appearance: A sharp, electric palette — stark white (☐ #FFFFFF), electric red (● #CC0000), and bright cyan (● #00FF22) that crackle along the edges of their outfit. Red lightning and wind currents visibly distort the air around them at all times. Their eyes alternate between red and cyan depending on which element is dominant in the moment.

Move	Description
Static Gale	Flashgale releases a burst of electrically charged wind — it's not just a shockwave, it's a blanket of numbing static that disrupts enemy movement, throws off footing, and makes precise attacks nearly impossible. Used as an opener.
Thunder Drift	Flashgale combines Lightning Movement with Cyclone's aerial agility — they don't just move fast, they move unpredictably fast, changing direction mid-dash in ways that should be physically impossible. Attacks arrive from vectors that make no sense.
Stormbreak	Flashgale ascends rapidly on a column of wind, charges both hands with red lightning, and descends in a spiraling dive — hitting the ground with a combined shockwave of electrical and wind force that craters the battlefield and sends everything airborne.

8. ❄️🔥 FROSTFIRE HAYAMI (Discovered)

Components: Blaze + Ice Concept: The Union of Opposing Temperatures Est. Power Rating: 80.08

Personality: Blaze's hot-headed aggression constantly wars with Ice's detached calm — the result is someone who is genuinely unhinged in the most calculated way. They'll freeze an enemy in place and then set the ice on fire while critiquing the opponent's fighting stance. Competitive and ruthless, but weirdly analytical about it. The rage is always one second away from the logic, and the logic is always one second away from the rage.

Appearance: A fractured, contrasting palette — one half of their outfit runs in icy greys and cold blues (( #90A5AA), ( #75E3FF)), the other in deep red and black (( #CC2725), ( #000000)), meeting at a jagged center line like two temperatures fighting for dominance. Ice crystals form on one side of their body; embers flicker on the other. One eye is orange, the other is blue.

Move	Description
Thermal Shock	FrostFire simultaneously burns and freezes a target — fire applied to frozen tissue, ice applied to burning wounds. The contradicting temperatures cause catastrophic cellular damage. Delivered through direct touch or a close-range dual blast — one hand fires ice, the other fires flame.
Frost-Fired Arrow	FrostFire wields their signature weapon: a frost bow drawn with a fire arrow. On impact, the arrow detonates in a burst that freezes the outer layer of a target while igniting the interior — a prison of ice that burns from within. Precise, personal, and deliberately cruel.
Blizzard Pyre	FrostFire generates a massive storm of simultaneously freezing and burning energy — a roaring vortex of fire and ice that shreds the battlefield. Enemies caught in it can't tell whether to brace for heat or cold, leaving them unable to defend against either. FrostFire finds this funny.

9. GLACIER HAYAMI (Discovered)

Components: Earthquake + Ice Concept: The Unmovable Solid Est. Power Rating: 82.33

Personality: Earthquake's protective, level-headed leadership merges with Ice's cool detachment and tactical laziness — the result is someone of total, unshakeable authority. Glacier doesn't raise their voice. They don't need to. They have already assessed the situation, determined the most efficient outcome, and begun executing it. Regal, composed, and quietly terrifying. When Glacier moves, it is because they have decided the fight is over.

Appearance: A towering, glacial palette — deep stone grey ( #4A4A4A), permafrost white ( #E8F4F8), and cold teal ( #396D7B). Their rock gauntlet from Earthquake is now encased in layers of ice, and frost spreads across their shoulders and chest like armor. Their eyes are a still, glacial blue-grey.

Move	Description
Permafrost Golem	Glacier constructs a massive golem — not from rock alone, but from layers of permafrost-reinforced stone. Harder than either material separately, it moves with the weight of a mountain and the cold of a glacier. Enemies that strike it risk frostbite on contact. Glacier summons it without looking.
Glacial Slam	Glacier coats their fist in a dense shell of ice-compressed rock and delivers a single punch into the ground. The impact simultaneously cracks the earth and flash-freezes everything the fissure touches — trapping enemies in ice that erupts from below.
Continental Lock	Glacier's most overwhelming move. They stomp the ground and raise an enormous terrain of permafrost and rock around the entire battlefield — walls, pillars, frozen ground. Movement becomes almost impossible. Glacier walks through it like they own it, because they do.

10. ⚡ ❄️ HAILSTORM HAYAMI (Undiscovered)

Components: Thunderstorm + Ice Concept: The Frozen Strike — Lightning's speed locked into Ice's precision Est. Power Rating: 82.42

Personality: Thunderstorm's cold, ruthless impatience merges with Ice's cynical, sharp-tongued detachment — the result is someone with absolutely zero patience for anything, including you. Hailstorm doesn't taunt. They don't monologue. They assess, they dismiss, and they dismantle. Every comment is sharp and accurate. Every move is faster than it should be and colder than it looks. The scariest thing about them is that they seem genuinely unbothered by the entire fight.

Appearance: A sharp, frigid palette — ice white (◻ #E8F4FF), deep black (◼ #000000), and electric blue (◼ #00AAFF) crackling along the edges. Red lightning is visibly chilled, leaving frost trails instead of heat marks when it strikes. Their eyes are an eerie, pale electric blue.

Move	Description
Frost Blade	Hailstorm manifests twin swords of ice-encased red lightning — colder and denser than pure Thunder Blades, each strike simultaneously cuts, shocks, and flash-freezes the wound. Precise, economical, and deeply unpleasant.
Ice Bolt Snipe	Hailstorm fires a bolt of red lightning that freezes mid-travel, arriving as a spear of electrified ice. On impact it shatters — the fragments electrocute while the cold spreads from each shard. Long range, no wasted energy.
Blizzard Execution	Hailstorm moves at lightning speed through a self-generated blizzard — they are invisible within it, striking from every direction before the target can orient. The cold slows reactions; the lightning ends them.

11. 🌩️☀️ IRONLEAF— wait, IRONLEAF HAYAMI (Undiscovered)

Components: Earthquake + Solar Concept: The Ancient Pillar — Earth's permanence charged by Solar's radiance Est. Power Rating: 83.17

Personality: Earthquake's patient, immovably protective nature merges with Solar's arrogant, calculating genius — the result is someone of profound, almost geological authority. Ironleaf speaks rarely, but when they do it lands like a proclamation. They have the strategic mind of Solar and the unshakeable calm of Earthquake — which means they have already won before you've processed that the fight has started. Not cruel. Not arrogant in the flashy sense. Just absolutely, quietly certain.

Appearance: A monumental, sun-baked palette — warm sandstone (( #C2956C)), deep iron brown (( #4A2E0A)), and radiant gold (( #FFD700)) that glows from within the rock formations on their body. Solar's visor appears here as amber-tinted stone lenses rather than glass. Their eyes are a deep, burning gold.

Move	Description
Solar Monolith	Ironleaf raises a massive pillar of solar-charged stone from the ground — it radiates heat and light, blinding enemies nearby and acting as both a weapon and a landmark. Can be detonated remotely for a solar explosion.
Radiant Quake	Ironleaf delivers Earthquake's ground punch charged with solar energy — the shockwave that radiates outward is laced with blinding light and scorching heat, burning the ground as it cracks it.
Fortress Sun	Ironleaf raises their full Fortress Field, but every wall is solar-charged — they glow searingly bright, are nearly indestructible, and radiate heat intense enough to damage anyone who gets close. Ironleaf stands in the center, composed, waiting.

12. MISTVEIL HAYAMI (Undiscovered)

Components: Cyclone + Ice Concept: The Vanishing — Wind and Ice creating concealment and cold control Est. Power Rating: 82.50

Personality: Cyclone's carefree, prankster energy merges with Ice's cynical, relaxed detachment — the result is someone who is deeply unbothered and slightly mischievous about it. Mistveil doesn't engage dramatically. They simply... aren't where you're looking. They disappear into their own fog, reappear somewhere inconvenient, freeze something important, and drift away again. They find the whole thing faintly amusing. Fighting them feels like arguing with the weather.

Appearance: A soft, obscured palette — pale mist white (□ #F0F8FF), cool grey (■ #90A5AA), and faint cyan (■ #AAEEFF) that seems to blur slightly at the edges, as if they're never quite in full focus. Ice crystals form and dissolve in the air around them constantly. Their eyes are a distant, foggy grey-blue.

Move	Description
Frost Mist	Mistveil exhales a massive cloud of freezing fog that blankets the battlefield — visibility drops to near zero, and anyone moving through it has their limbs gradually numbed by the cold. Mistveil moves freely within it.
Phantom Drift	Mistveil rides their hoverboard through their own mist at high speed, becoming effectively invisible — they emerge to strike, freeze the point of contact, and vanish back into the fog before a response is possible.
Blizzard Veil	Mistveil merges a full tornado with a blizzard — a massive, opaque storm of wind and ice that consumes the entire battlefield. Inside it, enemies are battered, blinded, and frozen. Mistveil drifts through it serenely.

13. ❄️ 🌿 PERMAFORST HAYAMI (Undiscovered)

Components: Ice + Thorn Concept: The Frozen Garden — Nature preserved and weaponized in ice Est. Power Rating: 82.00

Personality: Ice's cynical, sharp-tongued calm merges with Thorn's charming, unpredictable wildness — the result is someone who is quietly feral in the most composed way possible. Permaforst doesn't rush. They set traps, freeze the exits, grow something carnivorous in the corner, and then comment drily on how long it's taking you to notice. There's a childlike delight buried under the cynicism — it surfaces when the plants do something particularly creative. They find nature's cruelty genuinely funny.

Appearance: A cold, overgrown palette — icy teal (◻️ #5ECFCF), frost white (◻️ #E8F8F8), and deep frozen green (◼️ #1A5C1A). Ice-preserved vines and thorns wind up their arms and legs, perfectly crystallized. Flowers made of ice bloom and crack on their shoulders. Their eyes are a pale, frozen green.

Move	Description
Cryogenic Vine	Permaforst summons vines that freeze instantly on contact with air — they're rigid, razor-edged, and spread rapidly across the ground in branching fractal patterns, trapping anything they touch.
Glacial Garden	Permaforst causes a rapid bloom of massive ice-preserved plants across the battlefield — frozen trees, crystalline thorns, immovable barriers of natural ice-growth that reshape the terrain completely.
Permafrost Snare	Permaforst flash-freezes the ground in a wide radius and simultaneously erupts ice-hardened roots through it — the roots pin targets in place while the ice locks their feet. Escape requires breaking both. Permaforst remarks that it seemed efficient.

14. RUMBLE HAYAMI (Discovered)

Components: Earthquake + Thunderstorm Concept: The Hard Elements Est. Power Rating: 81.08

Personality: Earthquake's protective, grounded authority merges with Thunderstorm's cold precision — the result is someone who commands absolute fear without performing it. Rumble is not loud because they are angry. Rumble is loud because the ground shakes when they walk and lightning answers when they speak. They don't threaten — they inform. Every word lands like the move that follows it. Enemies don't just want to run from Rumble; they feel it in their chest that they should.

Appearance: A massive, storm-charged palette — deep charcoal ( #2A2A2A), earth brown ( #6B3A1F), and vivid red lightning ( #CC0000) that crackles across the rock formations on their body. Their gauntlet from Earthquake is now split with glowing red fissures of electricity. They look heavier than they should. Their eyes are a deep, storm-red.

Move	Description
Thunder Hammer	Rumble's signature weapon — a massive hammer crackling with embedded red lightning. The weight of compressed earth gives each swing tectonic force; the lightning discharges on impact, sending a shockwave of seismic and electrical damage simultaneously. One hit changes the fight.
Seismic Bolt	Rumble drives the hammer into the ground, sending a fissure racing toward a target — when it reaches them, a pillar of red lightning erupts from the crack directly beneath their feet. Earth and lightning, same source, same moment, from below.
Tremble	Rumble plants both feet and releases full combined energy into the ground — a catastrophic shockwave of seismic force laced with red lightning spreads in all directions. The ground fractures, enemies are launched, everything in range is struck, shaken, and scorched. Rumble says one word before doing this: "Tremble."

15. ⚡ 🔥 SCALDING HAYAMI (Undiscovered)

Components: Thunderstorm + Blaze Concept: The Unstoppable Force — Speed and fire at their most aggressive Est. Power Rating: 78.83

Personality: Thunderstorm's cold, ruthless impatience merges with Blaze's passionate, impulsive aggression — the result is someone who is terrifyingly fast and absolutely furious about it. Scalding doesn't pace themselves. They don't read the room. They identify the target and close the distance before the target has finished registering they've been identified. The cold precision of Thunderstorm keeps the attacks accurate; Blaze's fire keeps them from stopping. There is no de-escalation available here.

Appearance: A searing, aggressive palette — jet black (● #000000), burning red (● #CC2200), and blinding white-orange (● #FFB347) where fire and lightning overlap. Red lightning wraps their arms; fire trails from their feet. Their eyes are a blazing, furious red-orange.

Move	Description
Burning Blade Rush	Scalding ignites their Thunder Blades with fire, then uses Lightning Movement to tear through enemies in a single streak — a rapid series of burning slashes delivered faster than the eye can follow. The fire lingers on every cut.
Thunderfire Strike	Scalding delivers a single punch charged with both red lightning and concentrated fire — the impact is simultaneously an electrical discharge and a point-blank explosion. One attack, two types of catastrophic damage.
Scorched Earth Blitz	Scalding moves at full speed across the entire battlefield, striking every surface with burning lightning — by the time they stop, everything in the arena is either on fire, electrified, or both. Scalding lands in the center, breathing hard, looking satisfied.

16. SOLARIS HAYAMI (Undiscovered)

Components: Blaze + Solar Concept: The Sun Itself — Fire evolved to its cosmic peak Est.
Power Rating: 80.92

Personality: Blaze's passionate, bold competitiveness merges with Solar's arrogant, calculating genius — the result is someone who is genuinely magnificent and completely aware of it. Solaris fights like a performance. Every move is deliberate, every angle is chosen for maximum visual impact, and they narrate the highlights themselves. They are not reckless like Blaze alone — Solar's intelligence keeps them tactical. But the passion is always there, just beneath the composure, ready to turn a calculated strike into something enormous.

Appearance: A blazing, regal palette — deep solar gold ( #FFB700), vivid fire red ( #CC2200), and brilliant white ( #FFFFFF) that radiates like sunlight. Solar's visor returns here, but the lenses glow deep orange-red. Fire halos their shoulders. Their eyes burn a brilliant, golden-white.

Move	Description
Solar Chakram Blast	Solaris hurls their Fire Chakrams charged with solar energy — they travel at light-enhanced speed, strike with explosive solar force, and return trailing fire. At range, nearly impossible to avoid.
Corona Strike	Solaris ignites their entire body in concentrated solar fire and charges forward — a full-body impact that hits like a meteor. They calculate the exact angle of approach for maximum damage before moving.
Stellar Inferno	Solaris's most overwhelming move. They rise into the air on fire jets, charge an enormous sphere of solar fire above their head, and release it — a miniature star that crashes into the battlefield with catastrophic, incinerating force. Solaris lands smoothly. They were always going to.

17. 🌻 🌿 SORN HAYAMI (Discovered)

Components: Solar + Thorn Concept: Photosynthesis — Light Feeding the Plant Est. Power Rating: 82.83

Personality: Solar's arrogant genius merges with Thorn's naive, childlike wildness — the result is deeply disarming and somehow more unsettling than either alone. Sorn speaks gently, moves gracefully, and acts sorry about what they're doing to you. The intelligence is real. The remorse is not — every apology is sarcastic and condescending, delivered with a smile that makes it worse.

Appearance: A luminous, overgrown palette — warm gold (( #FFD700)), deep forest green (( #2D6A2D)), and white (( #FFFFFF)) accents where solar light bleeds through the foliage. Glowing vines wrap their arms, leaves shimmer with inner light, and small solar-charged flowers bloom and dissolve at their shoulders. Their eyes are a radiant, warm green-gold.

Move	Description
Solar Feed	Sorn floods a target area with concentrated solar light directed into the ground — plants erupt instantly, accelerated to kaiju-scale in seconds. Massive roots, towering carnivorous flora, walls of thorned growth — all summoned with a gentle wave and a murmured apology.
Photon Vine Whip	Sorn manifests vines threaded with solar energy — they move at light-enhanced speed, extending across vast distances instantly. On contact they burn and constrict simultaneously. Sorn uses them with elegant precision while quietly expressing regret about the whole situation.
Overgrowth Eclipse	Sorn releases a pulse of solar energy into the surrounding terrain — every plant in the area grows to monstrous size simultaneously, erupting through the ground, tearing through structures, consuming the battlefield in seconds. Sorn watches with wide, condescending eyes. "I really am sorry about this."

18. 🗿 🌀 STONEGALE HAYAMI (Undiscovered)

Components: Earthquake + Cyclone Concept: The Landslide — Earth's mass set in motion by Wind's force Est. Power Rating: 81.17

Personality: Earthquake's patient, protective authority merges with Cyclone's carefree, chaotic energy — the result is bewilderingly unpredictable for something that heavy. Stonegale is relaxed, almost cheerful, and moves with a looseness that makes no sense given the scale of what they're doing. They'll drop a twenty-ton boulder on you while humming. They'll redirect a landslide mid-fall because they spotted a better angle. The chaos is real; so is the weight. Neither cancels the other out.

Appearance: A rugged, windswept palette — warm earth brown (☐ #8B5E3C), storm grey (☐ #777777), and flashes of sky blue (☐ #87CEEB) where wind currents visibly rush between rocky formations on their body. Rock formations trail behind them like a wake when they move at speed. Their eyes are a breezy, open sky blue.

Move	Description
Boulder Gale	Stonegale tears chunks of rock from the ground and launches them at extreme speed using concentrated wind — not thrown, but accelerated to near-projectile velocity. Multiple at once, from multiple directions.
Rolling Stone	Stonegale generates a massive rolling sphere of compressed rock and wind-propels it forward — it gains speed as it travels, redirectable mid-roll, and hits like a wrecking ball that doesn't stop.
Avalanche Drive	Stonegale raises massive quantities of earth and stone above the battlefield, then releases everything at once in a wind-driven avalanche — the scale is geological, the speed is weather-system fast. Stonegale watches from above looking pleasantly surprised by how well it worked.

19. ⚡ ☀️ SUPRA HAYAMI (Discovered)

Components: Thunderstorm + Solar Concept: The Fusion of the Two Fastest and Most Destructive Elements Est. Power Rating: 83.25

Personality: Thunderstorm's cold ruthlessness merges with Solar's arrogant, calculating genius — the result is the single most dangerous version of Hayami. Supra does not speak unless it is to tell you exactly how this ends. They have already run the numbers. There is no move you can make that they have not accounted for. They are not cruel — cruelty requires caring. They are simply absolute. The fight was over before it started; Supra is just finalizing the math.

Appearance: A stark, overwhelming palette — absolute black (● #000000), blood red (■ #CC0000), and blinding solar white (□ #FFFFFF) that flares at the edges like a corona. Red lightning and solar energy visibly coexist on their body without canceling — crackling across their arms while light radiates from their core. Solar's visor returns with one red-glowing lens and one white. Their eyes are silver-white.

Move	Description
Eclipse Scythes	Supra's signature weapons — dual scythes forged from red lightning wrapped in solar energy. They hum at a frequency that destabilizes matter on contact. Supra wields them with zero wasted movement, each swing calculated to be the last one necessary.
Lightspeed Execution	Supra combines Light Jump's instantaneous travel with Thunderstorm's flash-step — movement that doesn't register as movement at all. They are simply somewhere else, then behind you, and the scythes have already moved. Witnesses describe watching an outcome without seeing a cause.
Supernova Drive	Supra charges both scythes with the full output of solar and lightning energy, then releases everything in a single forward-directed explosion of red and white destruction. The blast radius is catastrophic. Supra fires it at exactly the angle they calculated three exchanges ago. They have already turned away before it lands.

20. ⚡ 🌱 THUNDERVINE HAYAMI (Undiscovered)

Components: Thunderstorm + Thorn Concept: The Predator — Lightning speed animating Nature's most dangerous forms Est. Power Rating: 80.75

Personality: Thunderstorm's cold, ruthless efficiency merges with Thorn's charming, unpredictable wildness — the result is something that hunts. Thundervine doesn't announce themselves. They don't posture. They move fast, they set things that grab you, and they wait. The wildness of Thorn gives Thunderstorm's coldness an almost feral quality — patient in the way a predator is patient, not in the way a strategist is patient. You won't see Thundervine until the vines are already moving.

Appearance: A dark, organic palette — near-black green (■ #1A3300), electric red (■ #CC0000), and flashes of bioluminescent green (■ #00FF66) where lightning charges the plant matter. Red-lit vines coil and uncoil along their arms constantly. Their eyes glow a cold, predatory red-green.

Move	Description
Lightning Root	Thundervine sends electrified roots racing along the ground at lightning speed — they reach a target before they can react, wrapping and delivering a sustained electrical discharge simultaneously. Rooted and shocked, no gap between.
Static Thicket	Thundervine saturates a wide area with electrically charged vines just below ground level — invisible until triggered. Any movement activates them, erupting upward and electrocuting whatever triggered the trap.
Thundervine Surge	Thundervine's most overwhelming move. They release a massive network of red-lightning-charged vines across the entire battlefield simultaneously — everything is reached, everything is grabbed, everything is electrocuted at once. Thundervine stands in the center, still, watching.

21. VERDANT HAYAMI (Undiscovered)

Components: Earthquake + Thorn Concept: The Ancient Force — Earth and Nature at their most primal and overwhelming Est. Power Rating: 80.67

Personality: Earthquake's immovably protective, patient authority merges with Thorn's charming, childlike wildness — the result is something ancient and slightly terrifying in its gentleness. Verdant is warm, even kind — they'd prefer not to hurt you. But they also have the patience of geological time and the creativity of something that has watched things grow for centuries. They will wait. They will grow. And eventually, everything in the area will belong to them. The smile never leaves. That's the part that gets to people.

Appearance: A deep, primordial palette — ancient stone grey ( #5A5A3A), rich forest green ( #2D5A1B), and warm amber ( #C8A800) where sunlight filters through the canopy their body seems to generate. Massive roots and stone formations interlock across their shoulders and back like a living monument. Moss and small plants grow in the rock formations on their body in real time. Their eyes are a deep, warm amber-green.

Move	Description
Root Fortress	Verdant raises a full Fortress Field, but every wall is interwoven with massive thorned roots — the structure is harder than pure rock and actively constricts anything that touches it. The walls grow thicker over time.
Ancient Growth	Verdant plants both hands in the ground and accelerates growth on a massive scale — enormous ancient trees erupt, roots crack the battlefield, and the terrain transforms into a dense, impassable primordial forest within seconds.
World's Weight	Verdant's most overwhelming move. They combine Earthquake's full ground manipulation with Thorn's Forest Surge — the earth fractures and rises while every plant erupts simultaneously, creating a catastrophic upheaval of stone and living matter that reshapes the battlefield entirely. Verdant watches it happen with quiet, patient satisfaction.